Cessna Takes Flight in Bend

As the largest manufacturer of single engine airplanes in the world, Cessna flew in their employees from across the globe for a jet-setting gala celebration inside an airplane hangar. Five custom planes were on display and set against West Coast's new 20 foot x 25 foot photo quality scenic backdrops, featuring a variety of the Northwest's majestic landscapes. Each backdrop was embellished with custom décor, including foliage, pine trees, split rail fencing and rocks, to create alternating winter and summer vignettes. The hangar was illuminated with break-up patterns and moving lighting designed on custom trussing that hung 30' above the ground.

West Coast also provided black linens with silver, beaded organza overlays and custom centerpieces that featured 3 foot tall glass vases illuminated with crystal rocks and acolytes. Along with Oregon-brewed beer provided by Deschutes Brewery, the hangar's bar for the evening included West Coast's black leather bar stools and silver Cabaret Lamps atop cocktail tables. Thanks to a combined effort with Dan Conklin of Marketing Dynamics, guests of Cessna's celebration enjoyed a memorable evening of high flying.
